

Mahan and Man Carry Off New York State Tennis Championship

Throckmorton and Bull Lose Final in Four Sets

Winners Score by 6-1, 1-6, 6-1, 9-7 and Qualify for National Tourney; Griffin and Roberts Beat Washburn and Beals Wright in Exhibition

By Fred Hawthorne

Lyle E. Mahan and Alrick H. Man Jr. won the New York sectional doubles championship lawn tennis tournament yesterday afternoon by defeating Harold A. Throckmorton and Charles M. Bull Jr. by a score of 6-1, 1-6, 6-1, 9-7, in the final round match of the tourney, held on the turf courts of the Crescent Athletic Club at Bay Ridge. Their victory entitles Mahan and Man to compete for the national doubles championship at Longwood on August 16.

The match was not productive of first class tennis, except in spurts, all of the players having their turns at bringing off spectacular shots, but, in the main, there were far more errors than there should have been among players of the class represented.

An exhibition men's doubles match, with Clarence J. Griffin and Roland Roberts, of California, playing Watson M. Washburn and Beals C. Wright, of New York, and defeating them by a score of 14-12, 6-2, brought forth distinctly better tennis than the tournament match.

Miss Tennant Beaten
In a women's exhibition doubles match, Miss Marion Zinderstein and Miss Edith Signourney vanquished Miss Eleanor Tennant, of California, and Miss Florence Ballin, of this city, by a score of 10-8, 6-3.

Throckmorton and Bull always gave the impression that they would eventually pull out the match against Mahan and Man. They seemed to have the potential power to do so, and in the fourth set, leading at 5-4 on games and at 40-0 on points, on Mahan's service, they were three times within a point of squaring the match, but the finishing punch was not there, and Mahan and Man, with the little "brush" that so often comes up in a match, squeezed out of a very tight hole and finally took the set at 9-7 for the match and the right to compete at Longwood.

Mahan was a constant enigma at the net position yesterday. Neither Throckmorton nor Bull ever knew just what to expect from the tall ex-Columbian. At one moment he would be smothering a fast drive with a deftly turned block volley that dumped the ball back at an unplayable angle; and in the next play Mahan would fall down on a comparatively easy shot. In the main, however, his work was the deciding factor. He was always doing the unexpected, and he was very hard to read at the net.

Man was probably the steadiest player of the four, his driving being generally reliable and his low volleying frequently accounted for the winning points, but even so, I have seen him play far better tennis. The winners concentrated their main attack on Bull, and the latter was not able to withstand the combination of hard drive and steady smash, weakening in the third set noticeably.

Throckmorton Erratic
Throckmorton could never hold his best form for any sustained period. Had he been able to do so the result might have been different. He gave the impression of needing faster competition to bring out his most effective game, and the deliberate tactics on the court of Mahan and Man appeared to defeat him. Throckmorton, at one time, he had turned up his strokes to the fighting pitch.

The point score of this match went as follows:

First Set	Second Set	Third Set	Fourth Set
Mahan and Man	Throckmorton and Bull	Mahan and Man	Throckmorton and Bull
6-1	1-6	6-1	9-7

Roberts and Griffin looked to have some reserve against Washburn and Throckmorton, being able to raise the speed of their game at will. Whenever real danger threatened, as it often did in the first hard fought set, they were able to turn the tide by playing the doubles game in this country today that are the technical equals of Griffin on the courts.

Roberts's Backhand Weak
Roberts showed a decided weakness on his backhand yesterday, and in truth, you will find a majority of the Californians vulnerable in this respect, but on the other hand, they are all desired. His smashers carried the finishing power and were at the same time well placed, so that he generally managed to score the point when the ball was hit over the net.

Washburn was very good in the opening set, his flat drives accounting for many points as the A. E. F. champions of this directed his returns directly at the opposing pair's feet, and his lobbing was also of high quality. Wright was a factor in the struggle, while his speed and staying power failed, but when he came to slow up, his shot failed to come off with satisfactory results.

Miss Zinderstein was the dominating figure in the women's doubles, volleying beautifully on both fore and backhand and smashing with fine decisive force when the opportunities offered. Miss Signourney was also very good yesterday, her splendid driving through her partner forcing openings that led to her partner with chances for the finishing shots.

Miss Tennant and Miss Ballin were always dangerous in that first set, and in yesterday's match, the Bay State star, who defeated H. Hovey, Connecticut state champion, 5 up and 3 to 4.

Massachusetts Golfers Win
BRIDGEPORT, Conn., July 31.—The Massachusetts state golf team defeated the Connecticut team in their annual match on the Brookline Country Club course here today, nine matches to six. In the feature contest of the day Jesse P. Guilford, of the Bay State team, won over H. Hovey, Connecticut state champion, 5 up and 3 to 4.

Vanguard of Tennis Invaders

THE annual invasion of the East by the star racquet wielders of the Pacific Coast is well under way with the arrival of these three luminaries. Davis, Griffin and Roberts will compete in both the singles and doubles at Sea Bright, starting to-morrow.

Misses Wagner and Cassel Win Final of Long Island Doubles

Mrs. De Forest and Miss Walsh Beaten in Title Match, 3-6, 6-4, 6-4

Miss Clare Cassel and Miss Marie Wagner won the Long Island doubles championship yesterday afternoon by defeating Mrs. De Forest and Miss Phyllis Walsh at a score of 6-3, 6-4, 6-4, in the final round of the lawn tennis tournament on the clay courts of the Woodmere Club.

In the mixed doubles championship division, Mrs. Edward V. Lynch and Walter J. Toussaint, Miss Margaret Grove and H. Steinkamp, reached into the final brackets. The tournament will be completed this afternoon, with Miss Wagner facing Miss Florence Ballin in the singles at 3 o'clock, and the mixed doubles final starting at 4:30 o'clock.

Individually, both Mrs. Cassel and Miss Walsh were more brilliant than their opponents in the title match yesterday, but their team work by no means the smooth-working machine that Miss Cassel and Miss Wagner brought to bear. Miss Walsh was very effective in her smashing of deep lobs while Mrs. Cassel cut off many hard drives by brilliant volleying, and it was by these tactics that they won the opening set.

But years of association as doubles partners have schooled Miss Cassel and Miss Wagner in every feature of team playing and they refused to lose their grip after dropping the first set. Instead, they tightened up their game and went after the points with greater determination and finesse, than ever.

Mrs. Cassel and her partner were taking the aggressive throughout the greater part of the match, storming the net position continually and executing sensational "kills" by heavy smashing. To meet these tactics Miss Walsh and Mrs. Cassel started to lob, and they tossed with such skill that Mrs. Cassel and Miss Walsh were gradually forced back toward their base line.

Falter in Overhead Play
After bringing the games to 4-11, Miss Walsh and Mrs. Cassel began to falter in their overhead play, allowing their opponents to run off the last two games of each set, to win the match and championship.

In the semi-final round of the mixed doubles Mrs. Lynch and Toussaint defeated Miss Cassel and Miss Wagner, 6-3, 6-2, while Miss Grove and Steinkamp took the measure of Mrs. Samuel E. Waring and Fred Letson by a score of 6-4, 6-4, both matches being keenly fought.

Van Deventer Brothers Meet Defeat in Doubles
Holcombe Ward, former national singles and doubles champion, and Burton S. Prentice, the evergreen club champion of the Seabright Lawn Tennis and Cricket Club, of Seabright, N. J., defeated Ludlow and Philip Van Deventer, North Jersey Coast tennis champions, in a desperately fought five-set doubles match on the Seabright courts yesterday.

Ward and Prentice won by a score of 4-6, 6-3, 6-7, 6-4, 6-4, their team work and skill forcing the change of the Seabright Lawn Tennis and Cricket Club, of Seabright, N. J., defeated Ludlow and Philip Van Deventer, North Jersey Coast tennis champions, in a desperately fought five-set doubles match on the Seabright courts yesterday.

Hood Making Good
SALT LAKE CITY, July 31.—Wally Hood, the outfielder who was released by the Brooklyn Dodgers to Salt Lake, of the Pacific Coast League, is playing a good game and the local club, Hood is also pitching and in a recent game with Seattle he fanned the side in the eighth inning.

Goebel May Join Senators
WASHINGTON, July 31.—Nick Albrook, who is scouting in New England for the Senators, has reported favorably on Eddie Goebel, an outfielder of the Springfield team of the Eastern League, and he may receive a try-out soon. Goebel is a Brooklyn boy, who played football, baseball and hockey at Erasmus Hall High School.

Olympic Rugby Game
The American Rugby football team will meet a team of New York players at Harrison Field, near Newark, next Wednesday at 6 p. m. The American team will sail August 5 for Antwerp.

K. McGregor Wins Feature In Two Heats

Close Finishes Mark All Events; Crowd Hisses Announcement of Judges

MINEOLA, L. I., July 31.—Hisses greeted the announcement by Starter Ansell at the end of the sixth race at the matinee races of the Nassau Driving Club this afternoon, of a great match between K. McGregor and Oraldene. It looked as though Oraldene had poked his nose in front under the wire, but the judges gave the award to the previous heat winner, Kinney McGregor, which gave him the race.

Oraldene made a wonderful drive through the stretch, but the angle was so close that the crowd was deceived by and thought she had won. All the seven races were closely contested. Miss Clea Brook won the three-year-old trot in clever fashion, and when pushed always had just enough to stall off a challenge.

GRANTLAND RICE

(Copyright, 1920, New York Tribune Inc.)
The average golfer knows what it means to play a strange course for the first time, especially if that course happens to be rolling and a trifle hilly, where distances are frequently deceptive and are only learned by frequent tests, trials and tribulations.

The greatness of Ray and Vardon was never better shown than at Fox Hills, where they played a strange undulating type with certain rather sharp ascents and descents to figure on.

Yet Vardon, with a wounded thumb, got around in 69 on his first trip, and, on his second round Ray turned in a 67, two strokes under the professional record of the course.

These scores, among other phenomenal rounds over strange courses, are proof not only of fine golf but of wonderful judgment in figuring ranges. It is extremely hard over a strange terrain for the average golfer, even the higher class golfer, to tell whether he is 150 yards or 165 yards from the pin. He has to guess.

Yet one glance seems to be about all Ray or Vardon needs. One glance, and, having secured the club they need, the ball is somewhere close to the pin as if they had been playing the course every day for a year.

Judgment of Distance
This judgment of distance is a study that few golfers indulge in and yet it is one of the most important parts of the game.

On a course the golfer knows from frequent tests, just what club he will need from a certain spot along the fairway or the rough. This isn't the kind of study or of judgment but of frequent experience.

He will know the distance ahead just as he knows his own family or his own friends.

But, out upon strange pastures he is at a total loss. Yes, he knows a pasture is not even metaphorically a sea, but you get the idea.

Recently we had a round over the Engineers Club where the championship will be played in September. Two members of the four-ball match had never seen the course before. Coming to the 10th hole, 155 yards in length, they had an easy smash and was 20 yards short; the longer hole was a good iron wallop and was 15 yards over. One said he thought the hole was only 130 yards and the other was sure it was 170.

In playing this hole, Ray and Vardon would almost certainly judge the distance properly at one glance, as they have made a range finding a matter of long study. With them it would not be a guess.

But with nineteen golfers out of twenty, the distance is to be cleared on a strange course, is a guess unless they have a guide who can put them adjacent to the facts.

Ray and Vardon at Toledo
Make no mistake about the chances of Ray and Vardon at Toledo in the coming open championship of the United States.

They will be more than formidable factors, for they have a fine class chance of taking the big prize back East, and shores of looking once more at the

Notable Entry for Seabright Tournament Starting Monday

Richards, Voshell, Miss Goss and Miss Zinderstein Are Among Competing Stars

By Fred Hawthorne
The tournament committee of the Seabright Lawn Tennis and Cricket Club, of Seabright, N. J., where the annual invitation tournament will begin on the historic turf courts to-morrow, is indeed fortunate this year in being able to gather such a notable entry in both the men's and women's events.

Up to a couple of weeks ago there did not seem much prospect of having any but local players in the draws, but now all is different, and the prospects of a brilliant week of play is exceedingly bright. Holcombe Ward and Vernon Hodge, veterans of the country, have secured the entries of the greatest players now in this country.

Last week Willis E. Davis, Clarence J. Griffin, Roland Roberts, all of California, and Vincent Richards, the brilliant junior, arrived in this city and worked out at the Crescent Athletic Club's Bay Ridge courts, in preparation for the Seabright tourney. The addition of men like S. Howard Voshell, Harold A. Throckmorton, Leonard Bokman, William Botsford, Alrick H. Man Jr., Lyle E. Mahan, Frank J. Hunter and Walter Merrill Hall, it is evident that the quality of play is going to be very high in the men's division.

Women Experts to Play
As for the competition among the women, the prospects are fully as bright. In addition to all the women stars here in the East, including Miss Marion Zinderstein, national clay court and new tennis champion, Miss Eleanor Goss, of Philadelphia, Miss Leslie Bancroft, of Boston, the greatest of the California stars, Miss Thomas C. Bundy, Miss Helen Baker and Miss Eleanor Tennant will take the courts at Seabright.

Miss Baker, regarded as the best of the women from the Coast, has never before played on Eastern courts, while Mrs. Bundy has not appeared here since, as Miss May Sutton, some years ago, she have been defeated by Miss Goss, who has shown us that the caliber of her game is on a par with the leaders.

The Seabright club is leaving nothing undone to make this tournament one of the greatest, if not all of that, that has ever been staged on the ancient turf by the Shrewsbury. Special efforts have been made to make the doubles games in the United States, and, with this intention, Prentice has been instrumental in having the club offer in competition the handsome Seabright Challenge Cup for men's singles and doubles. These trophies were first put up last year, William T. Tilden 2d, the new world's champion, winning the singles and the singles cup, and he and Vincent Richards winning in the doubles.

Only One Other Tourney
The only other tournament scheduled in these parts this week is the annual open men's doubles event on the clay courts of the Hoboken Tennis Club, just across the river at Castle Point. Haddon Lyne, chairman of the tournament committee, has been holding up all available players, and a majority of
